A PLAN FOR SUCCESS

The community of Richwoods has a plan to become the model in Frisco for water efficient HOA landscape design.

With an eye towards the future, Richwoods HOA works closely with their irrigation company to plant water efficient, native and adaptive plants.

Currently, they are working on converting their irrigation system to drip lines (where appropriate) and separating out zones. This is beneficial so that flowers, for instance, which may need a little more water than ground cover, can receive that, without overwatering an entire bed.

RICHWOODS

EDUCATION

To help ensure this plan will become a reality, Richwoods is partnering with Texas A&M AgriLife Water University to help educate their residents on what it means to be WaterWise in North Texas. As part of this ongoing partnership, representatives from Water University travel to Richwoods and conduct courses in irrigation and smart watering techniques.

Richwoods residents credit their community manager, Chris Schappaugh, their management company, SBB, and their landscaper, American Landscape Systems, for their vision and foresight in guiding the HOA towards a proactive model of leadership in water efficient landscaping.

Thank you for your WaterWise efforts Richwoods, we look forward to seeing your plans become a reality!
